 Mines and Mining

THE COPPER CENTER

For weeks Mr. Wemple has been writing to relatives in the east who bought Spenazuma stock upon representations made by agents of the company. His niece, who resides in Michigan, and has saved considerable money from her earnings as a school teacher, invested $5,000 in this stock. and her father wanted to mortgage his farm to buy stock but his wife refused to sign the mortgage. Mr. Wemple's efforts to discourage investment on the part of his relatives were of no avail, and they are numbered among the victims of this fraudulent mining deal. It was this credulous class whom the agents of Spenazuma sought out, and no doubt many other residents of Arizona will find that friends and relatives in the east have fallen into this

Francis M. Macmasters of Los Angeles has purchased the Tres Amigos mine in this county and he will begin at once to make it a producing mine, Mining men who own claims and producing mines in the Patagonia district, the Harshaw and Washington camps, are interested in the outcome United States land court now sitting in Tueson, which involves title to their grant was claimed by Mexicans of 20,lands, the boundaries of which did not have since been opened up. Prospect-ors located claims throughout these monuments which marked the concession which the Mexicans claimed. Afdid not calculate the boundaries of the Journal-Miner. grant right. Instead of a measly 20,-000 acres the grant has grown into gigantic proportions and includes all of the rich mining districts mentioned above. Senator Cameron and Colin to be decided is that of its boundary. The fact that the government issued patents to mining claims as early as 1875 to claim owners in these districts shows that it regarded the concession as purely agricultural and the mineral sections were not included.

This grant is known as the San Rafael de la Zanja. If the government loses in this case a blow will be dealt the mining interests of southern Arizona which it will not recover from in many years. Investors who have latewill lose faith in the stability of this section of the territory. The mines whose titles are involved in this case and their approximate values follow: World's Fair, $500,060; Duquesne group of seven claims, $1,000,000; Pride of the West (lately purchased by the Westinghouse people), $125,000; Belmont, $100,000; Mowery group, $75,000; Guajolote, $50,000; Pool group, $60,000; San Antonio, $75,000; Hardshell group, $50,000; Hermosa, group, $15,000; Trench, $25,000; Alta, $20,000; American, $10,000; Blue Nose, $5,000; Bull Whacker, $7,000; Olive, $5,000; Paymaster, $5,000; Empire, $40,000; Silver Bell, $10,000; Dave Neal group, $5,000; Ella No. 2, $2,000; Holland, $16,000; Double Standard, $15,000; $16,000; Doub. Wabash, $5,000,

The total valuation of the mining ing properties mentioned above is $2,-220,000. These values are inclined to 220,000. These values are inclined to be lower than a visitor to the districts and one who is familiar with the mines would place upon them. The enormous wealth represented is but a portion of what these districts contain in an undeveloped condition. Many of the mines have mills and the most of them are equipped in some manner for mining. The Alta group alone has ave thousand feet of work in shafts, tunnels and drifts, and the Pride of the West is extensively developed and equipped. The Duquesne properties have the most complete service equip-ment of any mine of its importance in the southwest. Sales have been made in these districts of late and it is forg-ing to the front. While there is naturally an intense interest in the case, mining men believe that the government will prove that the boundaries of the grant were not intended to include the mineral lands upon which patents have been granted from time to time during the past twenty-five years GEORGE H. SMALLEY.

MINING NOTES.

The late George Hearst bought the Washington mine in 1880 for $40,000, looked stolldly at the sky as he lay but afterwards abandoned it, as the amount of silver in the one was not sufficient to pay, and everybody was then mining for silver. Large bodies by a night attack of the Indians; of what was called "munnio" were guards were posted out with instrucencountered, and this was thrown over the dump as worthless. In a letter to a friend in this city Mr. M. H. Twomey of Willcox writes from the Gilsey house, New York, as follows rospecting mining matters: "People here know more about Tucson and Arizona than I do. The senti-nel said he had shot at a black object crawling in the brush and when search was made a wounded Indian was found who, upon being carried to the campfire, proved to be a woman. As she was laid down by the campfire the Kid raised himself on his elbow and spoke in his language to her, and then he commenced the low, plaintive death

The weman's wound was examined by the surgeon, who pronounced it to be a mortal one, and in less than half an hour she was dead.

So the Kid would be made to wear some of the soldiers' discarded uniform clothing, but this forced reform never lasted at the most but a few days, for

"Taps for lights out" was sounded and Hogen with the detail of men for his last guard duty filed away to his post The other soldiers sought their blankets. At one o'clock in the morning when the detail went to relieve the guard Hogen was not walking on his beat and one of the soldiers in th darkness stumbled over something and lighting a match he looked down into the bloody face of Hogen from who hend stuck an arrow, one of the Kid's arrows. All knew his arrows by a peculiar mark. The body was carried into camp and search was made for the Kid, but he was not to be found; he had disappeared, taking his bows and arrows. He had crawled from his blanket and in the darkness crapt upon shot the fatal arrow and avenged his mother's killing.

In the morning friendly Indian runners were put on the Kid's trail with the promise of a good reward if they would bring him back dead or alive. The trail led directly to the mountains. The Indian trailers came back at night saying they could not find the Kid. All they did find was the Kid's shirt, which he had shed in his dight. He and left in his war paint and breechclcut. The Kid never was found by the whites. It was said he hid in one the canyons of the Colorado where is people from the reservation visted him and kept him supplied with ed.
